

World War II was coming to a close, but for the prisoners of Ofiag 64 the road to freedom was long, perilous and cold. Standing at the top of a hill, Royal Lee looked down at a church nestled in a peaceful valley. "Now that should be on a Christmas card" he thought. He still remembers the valley vividly all these years later--and loves Christmas cards with churches on them. After all, what better sign of peace is there but a church!!

I dedicate this card to Royal Lee and the prisoners of Ofiag 64--you are appreciated!!
